DECREASED WAIT TIMES; INCREASED PRODUCTIVITY

What are you waiting for? <sup>TM</sup>

THE PROBLEM

WHEN YOUR HEALTH IS AT RISK, YOU SHOULD NOT HAVE TO WAIT!

Budget constraints within the Canadian Healthcare System limit the number of patients seen by medical specialists each month. This creates average wait times of over 9.4 weeks to see a specialist and 10.6 weeks for a diagnostic scan.

Wait times can lead to deteriorating conditions, increased stress, worry and the inability to work or participate in usual recreational activities. This adversely affects your business by increasing absenteeism and reducing productivity which has a substantial financial impact.

$16.6 Billion

is the estimated annual cost of lost productivity due to absenteeism and disability in Canada.

Every Canadian

can expect to be placed on a medical wait list at some point in time.

900,000 Canadians

at any given time are waiting for non-emergency surgeries which will only be performed once there is a definitive diagnosis.

WHY TEKSMED CARES

On November 12th, Matthew woke up to a sharp pain in his spine, something that he had never felt before. Worried, his wife encouraged him to see a doctor. Concerned it may be cancer, his family physician requested an MRI through the public healthcare system, but the earliest appointment available was for late January.

Distressed and anxious about a potential cancerous tumour in his spine, and not wanting to wait 10 weeks for an MRI, Matthew called TeksMed and had the MRI booked within one week via QuikCare Platinum. Rather than waiting months to see a specialist, Matthew found himself in the specialist's office a few days later. Matthew found out he did not have cancer and was able to enjoy his holidays with his family, thanks to expedited healthcare with QuikCare Platinum.
